

About This Book

Fostering Unity, Dispelling Confusion is the much anticipated sequel to Paul's earlier epistle to the Corinthian believers, Keeping the Right Company. This letter seeks to correct the disunity and disorder prevalent within the Corinthian church, addressing such topics as cliquishness, lawsuits, marriage, personal liberty, Christian worship, and the hope of future resurrection. The book concludes with an appeal for the Corinthians' continued partnership in Paul's ministry, including contribution to a collection for the impoverished Jerusalem Christians.

About the Authors

Paul was dramatically converted to faith in Jesus Christ after persecuting Jewish followers of the Way. Now recognized as an apostle of Christ, he has shared his faith and started churches in many areas of the Roman Empire. He ministered in Corinth, a city of Achaia, from AD 51 to 53. He currently resides in Ephesus, a city of Asia Minor, but anticipates an extended visit to Corinth in the not-so-distant future.

Sosthenes is a Christian convert who now uses his skills, including writing, for the Lord.

About the Publisher

Ephesus Press produces, copies, and disseminates a wide variety of written material, including religious and philosophical tracts and business documents.
